

A black and white photograph showing a large pile of debris and rubble in the foreground, with a damaged building and trees in the background. The scene appears to be the aftermath of a disaster, possibly a fire or explosion. The debris is scattered across the ground, and the building in the background is partially obscured by smoke or dust. The overall tone is somber and chaotic.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

One perfect day in September can compensate for days of bad weather. We have had several of those when the humidity was low and there was a hint of a cool edged breeze from the west.

The hulkops now catch the first ray of light as daylight comes more slowly.

It is a time when goldfinches rock leisurely over the fields and the crickets fiddle unhurriedly in the warmth of a sunny day. I like them outside but am not partial to the small black spruce inside.

On these September days, if you lift your eyes to the hills you can see that they are preparing for fall. There are autumn clumps on the ledged hillsides or along the old country lanes. These and the back trails furnish nature's appealing pictures. Some of us somehow appreciate the small and familiar more than the grand and awesome. The blue cloud patched sky is a lovely back ground for granite-topped ridges, spruces, pines, hemlocks and birches.

On a morning which promised to be good Ruth and I set out for a hilly trail. However, it rained some time before we arrived at our starting point. Then as we stopped by a little pond the rain ended. The haze of the mountains was being wiped away as if by a sponge. So we looked around, found an interesting trail and set out. We were not in a hurry. We walked slowly intending to see as much as we could of our new surroundings. A wonderful expansion of evergreens everywhere and we pictured them a little later with flaming leaves, dazzling in their scarlet and orange, with occasional accents of tall pine or coned spruce spiraling wild cedar.

We did not search for any special sound but assorted voices crowded upon us: water dripping, rivulets clung, the fresh breeze through the trees, and the odor of the rain washed forest. From the forest floor there grew young green ferns and blankets of moss.

A squirrel ran unconcerned across our path. The blue jay could be heard in the distance. Nothing seemed to disturb these creatures in their forest home.

It was easy to get the sensation of being lost or isolated, in a world where sounds come from everywhere.

A sudden noise came to us from our left. I felt hurrying, a big black dog ran on by us taking more than his share of the trail. He became our companion for the way and the day.

From our many lakes we have learned that water is one of the hazards of a lake. It can't be because we must ford streams but the water on the trail itself. It soaks our clothes, rocks, moss, or logs with gifts and a piece of money that he is in the way, and keep us Foy Holt made them a beautiful ever alert. We have learned to stop carefully, watch for sandy surfaces where skidding is easy, and for protruding roots where we may catch a toe.

We came to a fork in the trail and decided to keep left toward a falls called Hermit, 1/4 mile.

Our appetite told us that it had been a long time since our first meal of the day. Time had flown rapidly and we thought that for hungry hikers, scenery would be better combined with food. We sat at the base of high, moss and fern covered rocks where the water pleasantly trickled in places, and ran in others.

When we opened our lunches "our" dog settled between us looking first to the right then to the left waiting for his share of the lunches. We did give him some in spite of the fact we hadn't planned on this third and big appetite.

We then took the trail to the top of the falls which ended there. Down the hill again we went toward the car. Blackie still stayed near. The trail unraveled beneath our feet and the wilderness once more unfolded before us.

Again at the pond, the curves and contours of the mountains stood out sharply. I suppose people love mountains for different reasons: to study, to measure, to observe or look at, or to walk among. We like them for the pure joy of them as they stand toe to toe.

Our dog wished for a ride but we had to leave him hoping that he would find his way home as we did ours.

Our community was saddened on Monday by the sudden death of Ben Homans who has been our summer neighbor for several years. He was a neighbor in the broadest sense of the word, quick to respond to the distress of any or all and the first with a smile to share good news. He made friends easily and all the neighborhood will miss him. To his family, his friends, and saddened neighbors this fine man will be more than a living memory.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hayes and Elmer Hayes were in Waterville on Thursday to see an eye specialist. On Wednesday they were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Hayes in Auburn.

Mildred Bowman, Hebron, has been visiting Dorothy Curtis for a few days.

David Holt has entered U. of M. Orono, starting his year on Monday, Sept. 18. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Holt took him there on Sunday.

Marcia Benson, West Paris, called on Ann Holt on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morris celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on September 14. The neighborhood remembered them and children rocks, moss, or logs with gifts and a piece of money that he is in the way, and keep us Foy Holt made them a beautiful children, two died in infancy, and Helen died in 1966. The eight living children and their families enjoyed a dinner served by the Ladies Aid of the Congregational Church. There are 90 direct descendants which include 36 grandchildren and 56 great grandchildren.

Children attending were Marion T. Ladd, Rumford Point; Arthur Thurston, North Rumford; Marjorie T. Burnham, Hanover; Evelyn T. Stevens, Boothbay; Verna T. Luke, Boothbay; Jeanette T. Lamson, Rumford Point; Marlin Thurston, West Peru; and Harmon Thurston, Brandon, Vt. It was a delightful day for Mrs. Thurston who is 85. Many of the cousins met for the first time. The youngest present was Rebecca Cunningham, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. William (Jeanette) Lamson, who was five weeks old, and resides in Fryeburg.

Relatives attended from Westbrook, Caribou, Boothbay, Rumford Point, Farmington, Fairfield, Fryeburg, Rumford, Andover, Boothbay Harbor, Augusta, West Peru, and Hanover, Maine; Gorham, N. H., and Brandon, Vt. Mr. Thurston died in 1948. Now Mrs. Thurston and her daughter, Marion Ladd, who is a widow, reside together at Rumford Point. A grandson, Melvin Burnham, Hanover, acted as Master of Ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Thurston presented her with a corsage. The tables were decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. Thurston headed five four-generation groups at the gathering. She noted that during World War II she and Mr. Thurston had three sons and two sons in law serving their country.

TELESTAR R. H. S. NEWS EAST BETHEL

STUDENT COUNCIL Optimism

This week finds the Telestar Rebels feeling happy and mighty. One might expect such things from a school where all three varsity sports are undefeated so far, and to celebrate the Senior class is sponsoring a victory dance this Saturday night.

All organizations are planning activities enough to fill the calendar twice. The drama club, bands, and choruses are beginning to prepare for their big productions, clubs are rolling towards a good year, the National Honor Society is raising scholarship money, and the Student Council is offering its helping hand to any who may need it.

The new Student Council president, Randy Littlefield, is spurring us on to bigger and better things with one eye on good ideas from previous years and the other on fresh innovations to come. I, as you can see, am optimistic that this year will be nothing less than the greatest ever for Telestar.—Mike Davis

Mrs. Olive Davis, Corres.

As I sit down and pick up my pen I wonder what I can write that is news for this week. Esther Davis gave me this item: Mrs. Mary Brown is visiting her daughter, Esther Davis, this week. Mrs. Brown's home is in Livermore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbs of Turner visited with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Davis Friday afternoon and evening. After supper they enjoyed seeing slides of Hawaii and the Gaspe Peninsula.

Leslie Bryant fixed the edge of the bedroom roof for Ellis Davis Friday so that the ice and snow would not back up and bother this winter.

Many have taken in Norway Fair this week.

The leaves on our lower meadow are turning to their beautiful red. That is always very brilliant with color, more so than most places we travel miles to see.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Davis called on Lizzie Russ at the Cozy Inn nursing home in Rumford Tuesday. She is rooming with Mrs. Ida Wright of Newry. Mrs. Russ is enjoying all her cards and callers. She hopes Scribner of Norway were visitors last week of Mrs. Leona Curtis.

Mrs. Richard Cox and Laura with Mrs. Roland Tyler of Dixfield were in Portland, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bessey, Barbara, Bonnie, and Wally of Rumford Corner, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cox.

Miss Esther Crockett was home Wednesday from her work at the Balsams.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Crockett took Mrs. Nannette Crockett and Mrs. Hazel Brooks to the Town and Country Inn in Norway Saturday to celebrate their birthdays.

Gordon Crockett was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crockett Sunday.

Teddy Crockett was home over the week end from his work in Colebrook, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. John Foster, Denise and David, of Andover, visited Mr. and Mrs. David Foster, Friday. Mrs. Richard Stearns of Rumford Corner, called on them Monday.

She was presented with an antique rocker, a blue slack suit, and a number of other gifts and also had a lovely cake.

Stanley Fox of Bethel called on me Friday afternoon. He had been in this vicinity that day on a fishing trip and had caught some good ones. I was very glad to meet him and we had a nice visit.

Mrs. Hazel Harvey was quite ill last week but seems a little better lately.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ridjon of Windham were at their camp over the week end.

Mrs. Helen Hart saw a large bull moose in her field, Friday. He went into the woods behind her house.

Mrs. Bertha West is at her trailer and her cold is about gone.

The Enderson family of Whitefield, N. H., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McGinley over the week end.

The Rev. Herbert Cummings of Lancaster started his Bible classes in the combined Magalloway and Wilson's Mills schools last week. He teaches in the Errol school also.

My grandson, Frederick Abbott of Grovelton, N. H., with his wife Linda and daughter, Loretta, also Chichi, the white poodle, were here Sunday. He and my son, Mark, worked on my oil drum, lifting it up and getting it ready to be filled once more.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stuart called on people here last Friday evening for the last time as they are leaving Colebrook for New York state where they expect to be for several years. Mr. Thayer of Colebrook will take over their duties here.

My son, Mark, worked the past week laying a cement floor in his garage.

My small dog Lady is not very well. It seems to be her heart. My grandson thinks nothing can be done for her.

Some very naughty raccoons are plaguing people, stealing corn and breaking apple tree limbs, besides taking the apples.

A housewares party was held at the home of Effie Kenney on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Corey W. Brown

BROWN - GREEN

Saturday, September 9, the Sandgate Methodist Church, Sandgate, Vt., was the scene of the marriage between Patricia Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Green of Kingston, Pa., and Corey W. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Brown, Bethel. The Rev. John Grey, East Arlington, Vt., performed the double ring ceremony on the lawn beside the church.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore an empire gown of organza accented with pink ribbon work and smocking on the lantern sleeves, yoke and hem. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and pink baby orchids. Her attendant, Miss Kathleen Anthony of Kingston, Pa., and Boston, Mass., wore a floor length gown of silk jersey knit in red and white stripes with a blue bodice. The cascade bouquet was fashioned of red and white carnations.

Carrages of yellow orchids were presented to the bride's mother, who wore a floor length dress of huge eyelet lace, and the mother of the groom who chose an ecru lace pants dress. Yellow orchid carrages were also worn by the attending grandmothers, Mrs. Michael Hancey, the bride's grandmother, and Mrs. John Sweeney, grandmother of the groom.

Groomsmen was Thomas Fallow of Boston, Mass. He also proposed the marriage toast at the champagne supper for the forty invited guests which immediately followed the ceremony.

Following a week's stay in Arlington, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. Brown are now at home at 20 Preble Street, Gorham, Maine.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETS

Mrs. Ernest Holt, Trustee; John T. Grover for three years; Mrs. Rosalind Chapman for two years, at a meeting directly following this election. Mrs. Elizabeth Mason Carter, who is serving her third year as trustee, was elected chairman; vice-chairman, Mrs. Rosalind Chapman.

Plans for the upcoming Second Homecoming to be held Sept. 20 were discussed. Anyone who would like to participate in any way to make this a success, is invited to contact Ed Quinn. People are now planning their booths—food and exhibits to be put up by their own arrangements on Main Street and Railroad Street. Various organizations are planning food concessions, to serve the 470 Railroad group arriving on a special tour, and to spend two or three hours in town.

The Historical Society will have some special items for sale to commemorate this event — including small trays bearing a picture of a locomotive, and maps of early Bethel, as well as like picturing the Androscoggin covered bridge.

The officers and trustees studied the latest blueprints on the Dr. Moses Mason house restoration, the target date for its completion being June 1973.

Members are very interested in hearing from Bethel people who might wish to donate furnishings suitable for parlor, kitchen and bedrooms. This home was never luxuriously furnished, but a comfortable Federal type house (built 1813-1815). Any gifts offered will receive consideration by a special committee, as to suitability. The House will have space for display of special exhibits—both local and otherwise when it is opened.

The membership drive headed by Guy P. Butler, has begun, and the committee has met twice to formulate plans and report. It is intended that before this is completed, that every business, professional person or firm, as well as all individuals be contacted; the response thus far is excellent.

It was announced that the annual meeting of the Maine League of Historical Societies to which the Bethel society belongs would be held at Shaffer Theater, Bates College, Sept. 16. Mrs. Elizabeth Carter and Mrs. Christine Grover attended this, and a report has been given the League president for inclusion in the next issue of the Maine History News, the voice of the some 127 Historical Societies and Museums which constitute the League. At this meeting Marius Peladeau was introduced as Project Coordinator, his employment having been made possible by a special grant through Maine Arts and Humanities. Mr. Peladeau will be available to consult with each so-

TELSTAR CROSS COUNTRY TEAM WINS THIRD VICTORY

Telstar High's cross country team posted its third straight decision Monday afternoon by turning back Livermore Falls, 26-23. Charlie Niedner of the Andies took individual honors and covered the 2.5 mile layout in 13:52 to beat the 14:05 clocking set by the Rebels' Barry Bodwell last week. Bodwell was second in 13:55 to better his own performance.

Telstar will be shooting for their fourth in a row against Monmouth Academy Saturday afternoon.

The first 15 finishers of Monday's meet follow:

C. Niedner (LF), 1; Bodwell (T), 2; Steve Blanchard (T), 3; Gary Howe (T), 4; Matt Lord (LF), 5; Dave Marceau (LF), 6; Paul Cyr (LF), 7; Roger Buck (T), 8.

Dana Haley (T), 9; Mark Wagner (LF), 10; Bill Murphy (T), 11; Dave Lane (T), 12; Jim Manter (LF), 13; Kirk Niedner (LF), 14; Steve Richards (LF), 15.

cety on any problem from involving whole community in the society activities to how to operate a museum. Mrs. Shirley Thayer of the Maine State Library reported that they have available histories, genealogies, town and county and State records not only of Maine but New England, which can be used to aid in society research projects. Dr. Edward D. Ives, better known as "Sandy," Maine expert on folksong and folklore, spoke on Oral History and the availability of help through the special Northeast Folklore Laboratory he has set up at the U. of M.-Orono, to aid in recording Maine history.

The meeting was conducted by Dr. William B. Miller (Colby College), president, and other speakers were Mrs. Sylvia Sherman, Maine Archives, and Mrs. Doris Isaacson, Editor Maine History News, Richard Collins, Maine Arts and Humanities Director, Miss Joan Radcliffe, State Museum, and James Mundy, Director of Maine Historic Preservation Commission.

It was pointed out that Maine is approaching its bicentennial year and only 15 months left for Maine Historical Societies to plan what their observance will be.
